SUMMARY OF UNITED STATES TIME USE SURVEY

1. Background of the Study

(a) Goals. There were four major goals of the United States time use project: first, the collection and comparison of basic behavioral data across eleven widely different nations; second, the tabulation of these basic data as general descriptive information on life in the United States; third, the use of these data as bench-marks in the measurement and assessment of social change; and finally, investigation into the major activities and objects which bring gratification and satisfaction to individuals in different parts of society.

(b) Previous research is summarized in our March 15 report.

2. Cities Chosen

(a) Jackson, Michigan. In all, 689 residents of Jackson county and 10 surrounding townships (which had 5 percent of their residents reporting to work in Jackson) took part in the current survey. Further information on the Jackson sample is contained in the March 15 report on the results of the Jackson sample.

(b) National Urban Sample. There are 67 primary sampling units (PSU's) in the regular continuing national sample of the Survey Research Center chosen to represent the country as a whole. Those 44 PSU's which contained cities of population over 50,000 in 1960 were sampled to secure a sample of 1500. These PSU's include the 12 largest metropolitan areas in the country. Identification of and further information on the 44 cities within these PSU's are presented in the following table. The number of interviews obtained from each city is given after the name of the city; the total number of eligible households is listed in parentheses.

3. Execution of the Survey

(a) Sampling. The initial plan called for 1500 interviews from the national urban sample. Due to an unexpectedly high proportion of households without an eligible respondent--almost 20 percent, predominantly households where all respondents were over 65 years of age--the total national sample came to 1244 respondents. A multi-stage clustered area segment sample (segments contained about 4 addresses) was selected for all areas.

In the first wave of interviews (conducted between November 15 and December 15), 936 usable questionnaires were obtained; these constituted a random sample of non-farm but employed national residents of cities over 50,000 population, with a response rate of 81.5 percent. In the second "clean-up" wave (conducted between March 1 and April 25), 308 further questionnaires were obtained; the overall response rate of 81.5 percent. Response rates for most SRC national surveys average 80-85 percent. In light of the work expected of the respondent and the fact that two interviews were required of each respondent, the response rate was about what we expected. According to interviewer ratings, fewer than 10 percent of respondents were uninterested in the interview or were careless in giving information.

(b) Field Work. The procedures for each interview required the interviewer to (a) locate the sample address, (b) identify the proper randomly selected respondent within the household, (c) take a short (20-25 minute) preliminary interview with the respondent, (d) explain the diary to the respondent and leave the diary with him (her), (e) return at least one day later to complete or correct portions of the diary with the respondent and complete the remaining portions of the questionnaire (the second interview lasted about 40-50 minutes).

Ten percent of the cover sheets containing the sample addresses were randomly stamped B indicating that the respondent was to fill out a diary for the previous day's activities on the initial interview. In addition 2/7 of the cover sheets were stamped "Weekend" and 5/7 stamped "Weekday" to insure a proper distribution of diary days across the week; as it turned out, this distribution ranged between 200 diaries taken on Monday to 156 taken on Thursday.

Before interviews could be coded, our office staff checked them for proper adherence to the international requirements of the survey. About 45 questionnaires had to be rejected because of an ineligible respondent or household, because the wrong respondent was chosen, because the respondent's time diary contained too much missing or uninterpretable information, or because the interviewer obtained a diary for the day of or the day before the day of initial contact.

4. Composition of the Sample

The final national urban sample contained:

- (a) 543 men, 701 women
- (b) 345 people under 30, 283 aged 30-39, 305 aged 40-49 and 304 aged 50 or over
- (c) 357 housewives, 342 employed women, 519 employed men, 13 students and 13 non-workers
- (d) 40 unskilled, 365 (semi) skilled, 18 technical, 189 lower white-collar, 94 upper white-collar and 172 professional (sum = 878) workers
- (e) 203 workers were employed in manufacturing industries, 240 in trade and retail, 107 in technical public service, 81 in education, 52 in construction, 61 in administrative public service, and 136 in the remaining and other branches of the economy
- (f) 191 respondents had graduated from college, 647 from high school, 321 from primary school and 72 had not graduated from primary school
- (g) 995 respondents were married, 127 single, 57 widowed and 62 divorced or separated
- (h) 470 had no children in the household, 300 had children all over 4 years old, 460 had one child under 4 years old

4. Composition of the Sample (continued)

- (i) 922 lived in residential sections of cities, 55 in the industrial and business districts, 71 in small towns outside of larger cities and 129 in isolated houses outside of Jackson city
- (j) 1101 respondents had an automobile belonging to the household
- (k) 149 respondents earned over $10,000/year, 262 between $7500-9999, 494 between $5000-7499, 205 between $3000-4999 and 100 under $3000
- (l) 745 respondents considered themselves Protestant, 383 Catholic, 62 Jewish and 39 expressed no religious preference

FURTHER DISTRIBUTIONS ARE GIVEN IN TABLE 65

5. Results

Due to the fact that the last national interview was taken April 25, that coding and corrections of preliminary data cards were not completed until May 16 and that the directors of the project wish to have the basic data tables available to participants as soon as possible, this section will merely repeat those differences found in the Jackson data. National sample estimates will of course be utilized.

Major differences between employed men, employed women and housewives were found throughout the tables, as found in Table 1. Employed men averaged about 7.6 hours per day on work-related activities, .6 hours on housework, 10 hours on personal need satisfaction (e.g., eating, sleeping), 1.2 hours on family tasks, 2.4 hours on mass media and 2.2 on other leisure time activities. Employed women averaged 5.7 hours on work related activities (vs .1 hour for housewives), 2.6 hours on housework (vs 5.1 hours for housewives), 10.2 hours on personal needs satisfaction (vs 10.6 hours), 1.6 hours on family tasks (vs 2.7), 1.6 (vs 2.3) hours on mass media and 2.3 (vs 3.3) hours on other leisure time activities.

About 80% of work-related time was spent at work on the respondent's main job. Very little comparative time was spent on second jobs. The remaining amounts of work-related time was split about evenly between work breaks and getting to and from work. Time at work decreased to about half on Saturdays and about an eighth on Sundays.

Close to 40% of women's housework consisted of cleaning house; another third was spent preparing food, with the remaining quarter spent on laundry and other house upkeep. Almost half of men's housework consisted of other house upkeep.

Unemployed mothers, of course, averaged most time (1.4 hours) on child care. Time on child care was proportionately greater for those with infants than for those without children under four years of age, and tended to increase with the number of children. Employed married women spent about 24 minutes on child care, employed single women about 12 minutes, and employed married men about 5 minutes.

Both employed women and housewives spent about 50% more time shopping (36 vs 24 minutes) than employed men. All three groups average about the same amount of time (48 minutes) on non-work-related travel, although unemployed men average almost 85 minutes on this activity.

Very slight differences were noted in the satisfaction of physiological needs. Time spent sleeping averaged about 7.6 hours; unemployed single women and unemployed men slept longer than the average. People slept more on Saturdays and Sundays. Women, especially single ones, spent a little more time (77 vs 59 minutes) on personal care. Close to 71 minutes were spent eating, employed women averaging about 12 minutes less on this activity, unemployed men about 25 minutes more. Time spent resting was about 15 minutes for men and 23 minutes for women.

Free time (defined as activities 15 and 19 through 29 on Tables 1-36) was greatest for housewives (5.9 hours), least for employed women (4.2 hours) and in-between for employed men (4.8 hours).

Of this "free time," most of the time spent on education was by students. The rest of the adult population spent only about 9 minutes directly on educational activity. Over 3/4 of an hour was spent on reading, 36 minutes as a primary activity and 16 minutes as a secondary. When asked in more detail about their reading on the diary day, respondents reported the same amount of reading as appeared in their diaries; they estimated 31 minutes for reading newspapers and 21 minutes for reading books, magazines and reports.

Organizational activity (mainly attendance at church services) was almost entirely confined to Sundays; the overall average was 16 minutes per day, almost 40 minutes on Sunday. Social life (e.g., visiting, parties, games) took up 71 minutes--more on Sundays and Saturdays, less during the week; the average for housewives was about 25 minutes more than for employed women and men. Time on conversations as a primary activity (highest for housewives, lowest for employed men) was about 20 minutes; as a secondary activity, respondents noted about 2.6 hours of conversation--probably a considerable underestimate.

Little time was spent on sports (7 minutes) and amusements (9 minutes) with employed men spending most time on sports and single people spending more time on amusements. Amusements were mainly frequented on Saturday. Even less time (2 minutes) was spent taking a walk; only 1 of 247 single respondents took a walk on the diary day.

Time spent on various leisure (e.g., hobbies, music, writing letters) was greatest for housewives (33 minutes), next for employed women (19 minutes) and least for employed men (10 minutes). Radio listening was done far more as a secondary activity (53 minutes) than as a primary activity (4 minutes).

Finally and perhaps most interestingly for the American data come the figures on TV watching. Only 3% of those interviewed did not have a TV set. The average amount of time watching TV as a primary activity was 91 minutes, as a secondary activity 36 minutes; when more detailed questions about TV watching were asked, the total figure appeared closer to 152 minutes. Employed men watch more TV (98 minutes) as a primary activity with employed women watching least TV (65 minutes) as a primary activity. Housewives watch TV 95 minutes as a primary activity and 57 minutes as a secondary activity; employed women watch 35 minutes of TV as a secondary activity, employed men 20 minutes.

Women reported a total of 5.3 hours of secondary activities, men 5.2 hours. There was a tendency for more secondary activities to be reported for those with more education. Conversation accounted for about 50% of these secondary activities.

A note on reading tables and F-tests

The data are in hours and tenths of hours; means less than 3 minutes (including 0 minutes) are not recorded in the tables. Weighted means (where each respondent is weighted by the number of eligible respondents in his or her household) are presented.

Due to the urgent need for making these data available as soon as possible the tables were calculated before final cleaning of the punched cards. This is more true concerning the classification of respondents into certain background characteristics on the module card than on the diary cards, which should be almost completely free from error. Thus, sample sizes for these tables may differ slightly (by not more than five respondents at the most) from the true figures. It is doubtful that this is of much consequence in interpreting the data in any of these tables, especially in light of the quite close match between the present data at that presented in the March 15 Jackson tables.

Approximate calculations of F-tests between all the sociological groupings in each table are presented in the tables as well. A design effect (indicating the increase of variance of sample estimates due to clustered sampling and weighted data) of 1.25 was assumed; thus it was estimated that effective sample sizes were 1/1.25 or 80% of those obtained.

In the tables, overall differences between the groupings significant at the .05 level are indicated with a single star (*), those significant at the .01 level are indicated with two stars () and those significant at the .001 level are prefixed with three stars ()�

It should be remembered that these are omnibus F-tests and that for more detailed comparisons, special range-tests devised by Tukey or Scheffe (not t-tests) are appropriate statistical procedures.

Notes at the bottom of the tables point out those differences which were found most interesting in the Jackson data, and which have also been found to hold for the national data as well. Differences noted in previous tables are not repeated.
